20th edition
Official launch of the nomination period for the Economic and Financial Journalism Awards of Excellence in partnership with the Caisse de dépôt et placement du Québec and Finance Montréal

Montreal, October 19, 2016 – The Association des économistes québécois, in collaboration with its partners, the Caisse de dépôt et placement du Québec and Finance Montréal, today announced the launch of the candidate submissions period for the 20th annual Economic and Financial Journalism Awards of Excellence. This prestigious competition is intended to publicly recognize journalists who cover business and financial news for their role in providing information and analysis and making it understandable. Awards of $10,000, $5,000 and $2,500 will be issued to the winners at a ceremony set to take place at the Centre CDP Capital in early 2017.

Nominations and prizes

The Economic and Financial Journalism Awards of Excellence are open to all journalists practicing their profession on behalf of print, audiovisual or electronic media whose main market is in Québec or to Québec correspondents for a Canadian media. To qualify, candidates must submit, by November 14, 2016, an economic or financial report published or broadcast between September 1, 2015, and August 31, 2016. Awards of excellence will be presented in the three following categories: long report; short report; and column, news analysis, commentary or editorial.

Note that all documents must be submitted electronically, including the registration form, the report submitted and the candidate's photograph. Competition rules, category descriptions and registration information are available from the Association or on its website: www.economistesquebecois.com.
